TUBES — The Sicilian art smith and designer Antonino Sciortino draws his designs from his own memories or finds inspiration in the rich history of his native region. Concurrently, Sciortino is always seeking a new touch to intrigue the user.

“The use of standard industrial tubes, from which I have sawn different facets and used them together to create a playful effect, makes the classic shape of the Tubes tables small pieces of architecture. The classic and universal colours such as cream white, black, and red, catch the eye without distracting attention from the form, the true protagonist of my designs.” Antonino Sciortino

Antonino Sciortino (1962) is an artist and designer with a peculiar background. As a child, he learned the trade of ironsmith in his brother's workshop in Bagheria, a small town in Sicily. At the same time, Sciortino commutes to Palermo for his other passion: dance. After a solid career as a choreographer at the highest level, he settles in Milan in 2003 to set his attention on the art of ironwork. Today Sciortino is known for his applications to the technique of 'filo cotto', literally translated as 'boiled thread'. His artful design consists of flexible, iron wirework inspired by the elegant movements of dance.
